

MARK.PLAN.TEACH.

Presentation with Ross Morrison McGill

Ross will be presenting a day of ideas, discussion and practical advice.

A passionate advocate for raising standards of learning and teaching, while reducing teacher workload, Ross has over 25 years teaching and school leadership experience in some of the most challenging schools in London, and is currently a tutor for the University of Buckingham. Teacher Toolkit, founded and curated by Ross was the Winner of the 2018 UK Blog Awards for Education. He has just begun to study for a Doctorate at Cambridge University, investigating the influence of social media on education policy.

When: 27 June 2018

Time: 9.30am—4pm

Where: Thorpe St Andrew School and Sixth Form, Laundry Lane, Norwich, NR7 0XS

Cost: £99 per person

WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT MARK.PLAN.TEACH

'Packed with evidence-informed practical ideas for the classroom that reduce rather than increase teacher workload'

'How to be a better teacher and keep workload at sustainable levels'

'Ross makes an excellent case for feedback being the cornerstone for both pupil and teacher progress, while fully understanding the problems of teacher workload'

'... is soundly based on a mix of astute classroom understanding, sound leadership experience and relevant evidence'

Who should come?

- Anyone with learning and teaching responsibilities
- Anyone who believes that teacher workload has become a critical factor in recruitment and retention
- School and Curriculum leaders

Book before half term and price includes your own copy of 'Mark.Plan.Teach'

To book your place please email: ntlec@thorpe-st-andrew.norfolk.sch.uk or call Lisa Clark on 01603 497783

National Teaching School designated by

National College for Teaching & Leadership